

WEB SEMINAR

On a college campus, sometimes finding the students who qualify for your foster youth program can feel like looking for a needle in a haystack. On Tuesday, January 22 from 2:00 - 3:30 p.m., the California Community College Chancellor's Office will be hosting a webinar in collaboration with John Burton Advocates for Youth that will explore innovative strategies for conducting outreach and recruitment that can help ensure that qualified students know about your program and can easily access your services.

The webinar will also cover the nuances of eligibility for Community College NextUP (CAFYES) programs, and how campus staff can work within the existing statutory language to maximize the number of students who qualify. While the webinar will be geared towards NextUP programs, the strategies addressed will have applicability for many different forms of campus-based foster youth support.
