

There are hundreds of programs geared toward preparing students for different careers, including short-term Career Education (CE) programs and apprenticeships. Training is available in a variety of fields including the fast-growing sectors of health care, transportation, construction, energy, and information technology.

Please join John Burton Advocates for Youth for a web seminar targeting individuals who interact with vulnerable populations including systems-involved youth and youth who have experienced homelessness.

Topics discussed include:

- Overview of apprenticeship and CE programs
- Discussing alternative options for youth interested in alternative non-degree pathways.
- Options for youth in Special Education
- Tools to search for programs, salary prospects, navigating CE options and program availability

Panelists include Department of Industrial Relations, Division of Apprenticeship Standards; and Los Angeles Trade-Tech Community College
