

The community college matriculation process can be daunting for foster youth. There are three major steps to complete prior to the youth's first semester of college: orientation, educational planning, and English and math course placement. Fortunately, there are resources and programs that can support a student's transition to higher education, including ILP and summer bridge programs.

Please join John Burton Advocates for Youth for a web seminar targeting individuals who interact with foster youth during their college and career transitions.

Topics discussed include:

- Summer bridge programs
- Youth Empowerment Strategies for Success (YESS) resources and strategies
- Matriculation processes for students with disabilities
- Recent community college assessment test changes (AB705)

Panelists include Foundation for California Community Colleges Youth Empowerment Strategies for Success (YESS) and the Riverside Community College District, Foster Youth Success Network
